Interesting Articles. Important Discussions. Numerous Illustrations.

The AMERICAN MISSIONARY plans to maintain a high standard as a missionary magazine for the year 1903.

It will be published by the American Missionary Association, monthly, in ten numbers, July and August being discontinued.

The field represented in the mission work of this Association is increasingly large and important, and the necessity for larger support is apparent.

Brief and interesting items from mission fields, descriptive articles concerning different institutions, discussion of fundamental problems of national importance by specialists will appear in the magazine during the year.

Subscription rate fifty cents per year for ten monthly numbers.

WANTS.

1. A steady INCREASE of regular income to keep pace with the growing work. This increase can be reached only by regular and larger contributions from the churches, the feeble as well as the strong.

2. ADDITIONAL BUILDINGS for our higher educational institutions, to accommodate the increasing number of students; MEETING HOUSES for the new churches we are organizing; MORE MINISTERS, cultured and pious, for these churches.

3. FUNDS FOR INDUSTRIAL DEPARTMENTS — to purchase farm implements, plows, harrows and cultivators; to erect shops and furnish tools and materials for instruction and use in the mechanical arts, for carpenters, blacksmiths, tinmen, harness and shoemakers; and to supply the girls' industrial rooms with sewing and knitting materials.

4. Special funds for the development of the important work in Porto Rico.

Financial. Ten of the twelve months of the fiscal year of this Association closed with July 31st. The financial condition is such as to cause considerable anxiety. Donations for July were less than those for the same month of the previous year. This reduced the increase from this source, which had amounted to $2,500 up to the end of June. The donations for ten months show a gain of only $1,106.65 as compared with the donations of the same months of 1901–2.

Unfortunately, the estates also show a shrinkage of $4,707.

At the Annual Meeting of the A. M. A. at New London last October the delegates of the churches unanimously and heartily passed a vote approving an increase of twenty per cent. in donations during the current fiscal year. The magnitude of the work, the immediateness of the problems which are meeting us as a Christian nation and lie in the field of the American Missionary Association are such that we had confidently hoped that this comfortable increase in donations would find its way into our treasury. We regret that the facts do not prove that this has been the case.

Responsibility. We appeal to the churches that have not contributed to send a generous collection during the current month of September. There are Sunday-schools and Endeavor Societies, also, which have not responded to the claims of this great work during the year. May we not hope that they will move at once in the matter, and by their gifts relieve the great pressure upon the treasury?

Individuals able to respond with larger gifts, whose sympathy and interest must surely be moved in behalf of this vast work among the many races making up our body politic, are earnestly urged to send checks to our treasury that this work may not suffer. The time is short before the year shall close and the needs are imperative.

Lynching. The calm and balanced letter of President Roosevelt to Governor Durbin of Indiana is a worthy utterance upon the national disgrace that has come upon us through the frequent violation of the law by so-called respectable citizens rising in mobs and lynching those who were charged with various crimes. No effort to suppress crime by the commission of another crime can ever be successful. It is not strange that President Roosevelt's indignation burns hot when he considers the lawless violence which seems to be increasingly common throughout the South and to a considerable extent in the North. President Roosevelt says:

"Surely all public men, all writers for the daily press, all clergymen, all teachers, all who in any way have a right to address the public, should with every energy unite to denounce such crimes and to support those engaged in putting them down. As a people we claim the right to speak with peculiar emphasis for freedom and for fair treatment of all men without regard to differences of race, fortune, creed or color. We forfeit the right, so to speak, when we commit or condone such crimes as these of which I speak.

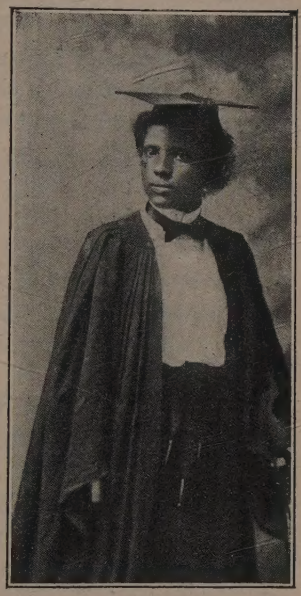
"The nation, like the individual, can not commit a crime with impunity. If we are guilty of lawlessness and brutal violence, whether our guilt consists in active participation therein or in mere connivance and encouragement, we shall assuredly suffer later on because of what we have done. The corner-stone of this Republic, as of all free governments, is respect for and obedience to the law. Where we permit the law to be defiled or evaded, whether by rich man or poor man, by black man or white, we are by just so much weakening the bonds of our civilization and increasing the chances of its overthrow, and of the substitution therefor of a system in which there shall be violent alternations of anarchy and tyranny."

It is a fact worthy of the widest knowledge that in these crimes, both by blacks and whites, no one trained in the schools of the American Missionary Association has ever been found. Christian education alone can lift a people out of the barbarism which is the cause of these crimes. The real redemption of both races must come through this process. Still, the process of Christian education is necessarily slow. In the meantime, as President Roosevelt so emphatically urges, the courts and legal functionaries should secure "the fair treatment of all men without regard to difference of race, fortune, creed or color." The appeal to "public men, all writers for the daily press, all clergymen and all teachers," to use their utmost influence to bring about a suppression of mob violence throughout the country, coming from the President of the United States, ought to meet with universal and emphatic response.

A LETTER FROM AFRICA.

MISS ALTHEA M. BROWN,
Missionary from Fisk University to the Congo Country, Africa.

IBANJ, AFRICA, March 26, 1903.



MY DEAR FRIENDS: I have been in the mission field nearly three months, and I have worked like a major ever since I landed. I copied the grammar and dictionary of the language, which is being compiled by one of our missionaries who hopes to publish it next year.

I began teaching in the school the second day after landing. I have been at my permanent place of labor two months and four days. I can speak the language quite well and I enjoy my work. We teach reading, writing, spelling and simple arithmetic. Some of the children are very bright and learn readily; some of them are very pretty and sweet.

We have four different tribes around us, all of whom have peculiar characteristics. The Baluba people were slaves for the most part, and are glad to work for the missionaries who have rescued them from their cruel masters. This tribe is not as conservative as the others; they also receive the gospel more readily. The most of our converts are from among them. This tribe lives in very neat clay houses about 10 by 10 feet. They have their corn and peanut fields and other native vegetables. They also raise goats and fowls. They make neat mats, baskets, hoes and spears, the latter of native iron ore. They are polygamists.

The Zappozap tribe came into this section from the far east. Many of them are slaves, but not to the same degree as the Baluba. They are partly Arab, and are the real cannibals of the country. They are a very intelligent people and take quickly to foreign ideas. They are very skillful in working in iron and make fine axes, knives, spears and arrows. They weave their own cloth and dye in black. They also are polygamists.

The Bakete is a very conservative tribe. Their hearts are seemingly closed to the gospel. They make their own cloth and will not wear foreign cloth. They live in neat houses made of the Malata palm. Their houses are built on many wide streets running east and west.

The Bakuba is the most intelligent tribe of all. They are very thrifty, and independent, showing the finest type of manhood and womanhood. They are not slaves, but own many slaves. They live in large houses built of the African bamboo and palm fronds, beautifully interwoven. Many of their houses have two and three rooms. They have blacksmith shops with bellows of their own make. They also make large war knives, spears, arrows, razors, hatpins, finger-nail cleaners, etc. They also make beautiful mats, which they use as beds and coffins. They make a fine, soft cloth from the palm fibre. They also make a cloth which resembles plush, which is very pretty and of various designs. The women make pretty hats and neat baskets and telescope-cases.

They have a large market every sixth day. At this market one can buy almost every thing he wishes in the line of African food—meats, raw and cooked, from white ants, grasshoppers, grub-worms, rats, monkeys, to wild boar, antelope, elephant and buffalo. Then there are peanuts, corn, bananas, sugar-cane, lumbidia, a kind of potato (very good), palm oil, sweet potatoes, chickens and eggs. So you see that this is not a bad market. They make much noise while at the market, very much like the markets at home; but they do not have stalls, so everything is put on the ground and the people sit while they trade.

I went to the market yesterday to get food for my seven monkeys. I took two boys to carry my goods. Being new I was cheated a little. However, I got as much as my two boys could carry for about three American cents. I find great pleasure in trading with the natives, and they seem to like to trade with me, because I am "green."

We have a large, neat church, which is filled every Sunday morning and afternoon. We have morning devotions and catechumen classes. Two weeks ago we had twenty-four natives to unite with the church at our communion service. It was a glorious sight. Nearly two hundred have united with the church here and in Luebo since I came to the country four months ago. So you see that the Lord is abundantly blessing the work. Many of them are strong, faithful Christians, but the majority of them are babes in Christ. Pray for them. One of those who united with the church a few weeks ago was a cannibal, a polygamist, and a superstitious "medicine man"; but he made his confession before the church. He said: "I give up all my sins and evil ways; I want to follow Jesus and do His will." Pray for this man.

In addition to my regular work, I have within the past month made ten large reading charts for the school and printed scripture mottoes; also the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments and the 23d Psalm; also number charts containing the multiplication tables, addition, subtraction and division tables. The mottoes are my own translation from the Bible. It is a beautiful language, but it is highly inflected.

This leaves me well and happy, and, with much love for you all, I again thank you for your kindness.

THE OLD AND THE NEW INDIAN LIFE.

C. L. HALL, NORTH DAKOTA.

Those who have been long among the Indian people sometimes get a hint from newcomers. Such a one at the Mission House the other day, seeing a man at work, said: "That is the first Indian I have seen with braided hair." We keep on with our daily round unobserving till suddenly the spring is upon us, so appears the result of Christain effort after patient waiting. Let us hope that the passing of old costumes is an indication of the decadence of old customs and the deliverance from old sins.

Yet we are still subject to the incongruities and the trials incident to a transition period. The condition of the community may be typified by the attitude of an old "medicine man" named Black Tongue. He passed away long ago, but is still remembered by efforts made one day to conform to his host's customs, which met with only partial success. He took the chair offered graciously, if not with grace. He was more at home on the floor, with his blanket looped round his knees to support his back. He drew the line against the advance of civilization, however, when a plate of food was offered him. He was made of earth and so was the food, and it must be eaten from the ground. This he attempted to do while still seated upright in the chair. The situation was an awkward one. The half-way condition is probably always a difficult one.

We find in an Indian home a nice bedroom set on one side of the best of the two, or, possibly, three rooms that the house contains, and on the other there may be an elderly man lying on some quilts on the floor. He will have only a sheet around his naked body. The quilts were probably made in the sewing society that his daughter attended. A pen and paper are on the table, and overhead is a string of thin slices of beef hung up by the old woman of the house. The young owner of the pen will say to you in his transition English: "My grandmother he do it; my grandfather she too sick; she eat meat get no sick." The young man has on a fine black Sunday suit, bought by mail at an eastern supply house, and a pair of bright-beaded moccasins made for him by one of his women relatives. His young wife is at a sewing machine running up the seams of a dress she has cut out after a "Delineator" pattern, while outside the door her mother is scraping a hide preparatory to tanning it. The scraper is a piece of buffalo bone with a little crotch in it, into which is bound with a rawhide string a bit of steel. This piece of a white man's knife blade has taken the place of the ancient flint. The hide is no longer from a deer taken in the chase, but of a cow or a calf taken from the herd.

This co-existence of old and new environments is incongruous, but the mixture of old superstition and the new Christian influences is more serious. The old "Medicine Lodge," as frontiersmen called the earth lodge in which the heathen worship and torture and jugglery were once carried on, disappeared half a dozen years ago, but some old devotee still keeps up his offerings to the Itaika-Mahidish (The First Made), or to some of the powers of nature, or some deified spirit of an animal. They are in sight of one of our preaching stations, where the younger people are trying to raise money to build a church. The offerings to the Indian god are small pieces of printed calico from an eastern mill, bound about some twigs and grass, and put up on poles outside the house. The young woman who is making an effort to live a Christian life takes her Sunday-school pictures home and is suffered to pin them up on the log wall under the gourds which her father obtained from a southern conjurer at a great price. These gourds have some shot in them, and in case of sickness they will be rattled to drive away the demons. The young Christian man will be led off by his relatives to look on at the heathen dance, and there in the excitement and the crowd, the little stick will be forced on him, and he will feel obliged to give up his property. Then he will come away impoverished and ashamed. Even to the grave the struggle continues. A young married couple have been trained in the mission school. The wife dies soon after her first-born child. An inherited scrofula and ignorant treatment carry her off. The mother proposes to put the body on a scaffold on the hill back of the house. The grandmother had been so disposed of. The insistence of the more advanced of the community secure to the bereaved husband a burial for his wife. Yet the grave is barely deep enough to cover the coffin. The rough box has been lined with white and a wreath of green provided by mission friends. The neat wedding dress is on, but over it is wrapped a parti-colored blanket, gaudy and soiled. What wonder if sometimes the struggle is abandoned. At one place a middle-aged man left the services. Later he appeared at the meeting place on Sunday. He did not come to church, however, but brought some cord wood to sell. He had taken care to dress himself in full Indian costume, and said that as he was going altogether in the Indian way, he thought no blame could be attached to him for not following the white road. His is not the only case of hiding from the truth to quiet conscience.

Evade as they may, some of them, still the struggle is on, and peace will only come when the sword that Christ has sent conquers.

A RELIC OF BARBARISM.

One of our Gideon band, on a recent "Decision Day," was asked to express his mind before the assembly. He is a very old man, and did not quite see our motive for asking, and so answered a little sharply: "I do not understand why you ask me. Have I not for years been following the Son of God? Did I not take from my house all the conjuring things that I had paid so dearly for, and that I had revered till old age? A bear's arm, a crane's and an owl's head, a buffalo skull, sweet grass braided to represent a double headed snake, a buffalo's beard, owl claws, and many other things I took out to the top of a hill. I talked to them there and said: I do not want you any more. I threw them away. The chief, Crow Belly, called me a fool for doing so. Now what more ought I to do?"

What more ought we Christians to do? How shall we match the struggles and sacrifices of the awakening heathen?

Appreciation. The following expression of cordial appreciation of the missionary magazine and of the leaflets issued by the Association comes from a leading educator in Manitoba. The value of this literature is not always understood by those who do not make a study of it. When pupils in a large institution find it attractive and useful it is certainly an encouraging fact. Many such letters reach us, all of which we appreciate.

"Will you kindly send me the following leaflets? They are read so eagerly by our pupils, when they will not read books, and have a good effect on their lives. I am a subscriber to your missionary paper which I find is very much read. I have great faith in leaflets making young people missionary in spirit or missionaries."

LAS CABEZAS, PORTO RICO.

MISS J. L. BLOWERS.

The greatest curse of Porto Rico to-day is ignorance with its attendant train of vices. The antidote is education. The mission and the public schools are educating the mind; the Church, through its ministers and missionaries, must educate the soul. This she is doing with wonderful power and force.

But nowhere is there a more interesting or encouraging work than at the cape "Las Cabezas," one of the most beautiful spots on this dainty gem of an island. There is no town here, just the open country where live a sturdy, thrifty people—poor but industrious, ignorant but ambitious. They need and want a church, a school and a missionary. Can we give them these? Fifty women who cannot read want to hear about Jesus, fifty girls who are growing up want to be taught and fifty men who are reading the Bible for the first time want to be instructed. The poor souls have caught a glimmer of light and are groping for more!

Just a brief history of the place. Years ago Don Ramón Roble settled here with his young Spanish wife. All the present inhabitants of the cape are his descendants. His children are all scattered or dead save two sons, now old men. The elder Don Ramón lives at the old homestead, owns most of the land in the vicinity and is the Father Abraham of the flock. He is seventy-three years old, and has seventeen children and more than three-score grandchildren, all living in trim little shacks scattered over the slopes or clustered in the coves. Don Ramón is a unique character. Born in Madrid or New York he would have been a leader. He cannot read, but is shrewd and intelligent. He is strong, commanding, stern—but kindly and gentle as a woman.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLARS, FAJARDO.

And the children of such a father, in their out-door life nourished and taught by kindly nature, ennobled by her magnificent views of the ever-changing glory of sea and sky, buffetted by storms and waves, must grow up to be strong and rugged. If rightly directed, they will be a power for righteousness in the coming generations of Porto Rico.

The people tell this story. The year before the Spanish-American war, a stranger from the outer world appeared unannounced in their midst. He was a quiet, unassuming man and, though he gave no account of himself, they received him into their homes with open-hearted hospitality and he lived among them as a brother. He joined in their simple life, fishing and working in the fields and in the hours of rest reading to them the Bible. The story of Christ's life was new and strange and wonderful. God they knew through his constant glorious revelation and they loved him with a simple trust. But of Jesus, the Saviour, they had never heard. The stranger staid with them for months, till one day he quietly slipped away as he had come and no one could learn aught of his going, or of him.

But from this unknown man the people had learned something of the Gospel and were eager for more. After the war was over and quiet was restored they heard of a new church in Fajardo where the Bible was read and taught, and they sent word to the minister asking him to come and preach to them. This he gladly did, and for the six months since then services have been regularly held. There is no building large enough for the congregation, so the people have gathered in a sheltered cove and reverently heard the Word, as did the fishermen by the sea of Galilee.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, FAJARDO.

The people begged for a teacher for the women and children, so I spent a few days with them to study the conditions and see what could be done. Good old Don Ramón was my host and I can never forget the days spent with my simple-hearted friend. They received me like a sister, but treated me like a queen. But most touching of all it was to see their unquestioning trust in God, and their eagerness to learn about Jesus. Each day I gave a Bible lesson, but, by the number who tried to crowd into the only available room, it was evident that we must have a larger building. The first day a service was announced for the women and girls, but there were more men than women present, and, of course, we could not turn them away. During the week the attendance averaged seventy-five, with one meeting of one hundred and fifty.

Some of our friends on learning of the needs of "Las Cabezas" have given liberally towards the mission cottage which we hope to build in the near future. Already we have a site purchased by funds sent by a Sunday-school in western New York (and a business man in New York state and another in Iowa), and part of the amount for the building, but we need $500.00 more. It is an investment that will pay, for the dividends will be men and women. Will you not take a share?

Annual Meeting. We call special attention to the full announcement of the Fifty-seventh Annual Meeting of the American Missionary Association to be held in the Plymouth Congregational Church, Cleveland, Ohio, October 20, 21, 22, which appears on the last page of the cover of this magazine.

ONE VIEW OF THE SOUTHERN HIGHLANDS.

GEORGE H. POST, TENNESSEE.

When the great black herald on rails came plunging up the forested mountain slopes, plateaus and hollows of the shut-in land of the South, he rang his bell at every crossroads and screamed "Mingle!" He is ringing and calling still, ever more and louder; and ever still more the highlands commingle with themselves and with the great without. Life instantly, with the railway's entrance, became more social.

Whatever socializes and complicates conditions of living, puts into a moving picture the interturning of influence which is an eternal spiritual truth; it tends to enforce, even as a mutual necessity, that forbearance and brotherly treatment which, when yielded from the heart are the Christ conception. The peculiar selfishness of isolation weakens

What else happens? There is a new blossoming of vices, in and from the railroad town; life seems more absorbed in money-making as natural resources begin to be discovered or new markets opened; the sweet old hospitality lessens, and brotherhood is neglected or violated by covetousness. For geographical isolation is substituted the separateness of a preoccupied soul.

And again, whatever enlarges and enriches a Christian's view of the world does the same for his view of God. And the conception of God conditions the religious life. Yet, in the process of readjustment of belief appear two conditions, which are painful to note, while they last, and heavily affect the visible conditions of all the church organizations. Both conditions are seen in the North. I wish to emphasize the point that they are existent in the mountains to-day not less. These two conditions of the process of enlargement are, a certain bewilderment of ideas, and the loss of intensity.

The period of formal public debate between picked denominational champions is nearly run; the sense of an unspeakable divergence, a sufficient ground of chronic war, between churches is surely going fast; a sense of defect and narrowness in the old church views and ways remains. The ethical conception of Christianity waxes. The old garment is nearly off, while the new is yet being woven. It would be a great exaggeration to say "Death is past, life not come," in the organized religious bodies of the southern highlands. Meanwhile, unrest, reduced dogmatism, increased tolerance, which of course may shade into indifference; religious individualism, with yet a growing sense of social solidarity and mutual duty, and of the likeness of all our faiths beneath the outer forms. The devout premillenialist stamps the present condition as a recession, a falling away from the faith. Other devout hearts are puzzled, tempted to discouragement, but nourish the faith that this is an age in which more than ever before has been true—the Kingdom of God is coming without the observation of the natural eye; that essential Christianity is in one of its relatively secret stages of preparation, yet to emerge in rejuvenated church life.

There are many glints of light upon the sky—the new emphasis upon Love as the heart of religion; upon "the answer of a good conscience," the honest heart; the oneness of all God's children—the need of education. Prejudice is coming to see its ugliness in the glass of fellowship. After remarking that he was once filled with church prejudice, a prominent member of the Christian Church recently said before brethren of several churches convened in prayer-meeting, "Henceforth I'm going to know only Jesus Christ and Him crucified." How much such a stand signifies one wishes he could explain to the outsider. The widespread practice of dramming, among church members, is passing into general and increasing condemnation. The bumptious remark of preachers, once occasionally heard, "The Bible is no mystery to me; I understand every word of it," is dying into eternal silence. Attendance at any single church service may be less than of old, in many and even most instances, but in frequent cases there are more meetings in the month. At any rate, the quality of preaching is more spiritual.

Is not most of the good noted in the foregoing lines a movement toward what our churches, so few and small in the South, peculiarly stand for? All churches are growing more liberal, and we have no patent upon true Christianity; but there is no church on earth, it seems to us, which finds it so easy, so normal to its genius, to love the brethren, to co-operate with other households of faith, to mediate among them all. Wherever we can do this our power far outruns our numerical strength. The leaven works on. Manifold are the Christians who are essential Congregationalists, but whom we would not beg to join us in name, while the power of their kinship, enrolled for generations among the old-line churches, holds them back. And as wider and wider opens the spiritual eye of this mountain land, coming to see the true proportions of doctrines, discerning the genial and co-operative element in Christianity—in a word, attaining to a worthier conception of God, being born into the newer day, may we continue to stand by as helpers, teachers and spiritual advisers. The work of the American Missionary Association in the South stands for this larger spiritual conception and Christian power and fellowship.

"THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE INDIVIDUAL."

ELLSWORTH BONFILS.

The problem of work for neglected peoples is largely one of money. Opportunities are more than abundant; workers can usually be secured; but the one must be refused and the other neglected because Providence has not so arranged that missionary work will do itself, nor missionaries so that they can live on air and consecration.

"Church collections" are manifestly inadequate to meet the full demand. Year-Book returns show not only a disproportion of emphasis as regards gifts for this or that, but also as between the real ability of the church and the actual gift.

Again, to one with an "inside knowledge" of collections, it is manifest that the major part usually comes from a very few donors. The writer has known repeatedly seventy-five per cent. of an envelope-offering, announced and provided for beforehand and participated in by many givers, to be the share of half-a-dozen; and even at times more than one-half of a total offering to come from two friends.

Two conclusions are fair: (1) There is lack of a "saving knowledge" of the real importance of the claims presented. (2) There is lack of a just sense of individual responsibility. This is too often lost sight of in the crowd. Dr. B. T. Washington once told me of addressing an audience of three thousand delighted hearers, which contributed thirty dollars in the collection!

Two things are manifest: (1) The work should not be permitted to suffer. (2) The old method of the collection ought not to be relied on as a finality—the "individual" must be reached and appealed to. Experience proves that many a man who contents himself with "a quarter" (more or less) as his share of the formal collection, will give as easily (and gladly) five or more dollars when he is personally approached—ofttimes very much in excess of this amount if a specific object be presented. This raises the question at once, Why did he not put the larger amount in the plate? The cause is the same, and its claim has been presented to him in the address or by whatever method prevails.

I suppose that the average hearer does not acknowledge the "claim." But this fact challenges refutation—every need is in itself a "claim" upon every one who can give; and responsibility is commensurate with ability to respond. "To whom much hath been given, of him shall much be required."

I do not wish to be misunderstood and charged with denying "the right to private judgment" in this, as in other matters. But it at least is not pessimistic to mildly suggest that this same right is very much overworked by many of its possessors. There are, however, bright aspects of this matter, there being some who "overworked" this right in the reverse order. Their number, at last accounts, was not so great as to cause alarm. Yet there are those whose regretful refusal to respond to an appeal is based on the fact that they are already giving intelligently to the full extent of a liberal interpretation of their responsibility. "May their tribe increase."

One who comes into contact with this sort of work uncovers various, and sometimes peculiar, phases of human nature. But he also finds very noble and beautiful characteristics. Memory has a pleasant niche for a noble instance of the cultured New England woman endowed with generous wealth, who so graciously and readily acknowledged the claim of great causes for considerable gifts upon people of large means, and who gave evidence of her intelligent acquaintance with great and pressing needs.

And that pleasant conversation on the porch of a beautiful home in one of our finest New England cities with an interested lady, whose cordial and sympathetic questions opened the way for a specific appeal for a far-away southern need. How swiftly the response followed, not only from herself but from her son, which made possible a work which had long hung in the balance, and sent hope and courage to many waiting hearts!

Let me close with some impressions from an interview with a young man, the heir to vast wealth, in a city famous for its culture and its historic setting. I see him now—manly, intelligent, courteous—gravely considering an appeal for a large gift for a strategic opportunity. His ultimate decision causes me to long that more such men might only realize the wonderful personal blessing, as well as that to humanity, which comes from starting out to live as stewards on broad and generous lines. Surely "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

And surely the support of the great work the American Missionary Association is doing must depend more and more upon these stewards through their individual gifts. Upon such stewards of large means God has placed a special responsibility in the administration of their stewardship.

Sheet Anchor. Hold fast to the Bible as the sheet anchor to your liberties; write its precepts in your hearts, and practice them in your lives. To the influence of this Book we are indebted for all progress made in our true civilization, and to this we must look as our guide in the future.—ULYSSES S. GRANT.

ANNUAL MEETING.

"If I had known what I was missing I should have been here before." "I had no idea of the vastness of the A. M. A. work until I came to the Annual Meeting." "This is the best missionary meeting I ever attended." Such were some of the remarks heard at the Annual Meeting last fall.

We anticipate similar testimony at the forthcoming meeting, October 20–22, at Cleveland, Ohio, where we hope for a large representation from Women's Societies. The woman's session will, as usual, be an open meeting on the afternoon of the 22d with missionary speakers directly from the field. It is very desirable, however, to plan for the full time from the 20th and thus get full information of the A. M. A. field. All who come will surely get inspiration to missionary service; and to state officers and local leaders the help derived will be particularly useful.

PROGRAMS FOR 1903-04.

Many topics for Women's Missionary Meetings will be found in the programs to be issued during the year. The outline of study proposed by the committee representing the State Unions will be helpful to many local societies. A few of the State Unions have prepared special programs for their auxiliaries, from which selections will be given in these pages. The American Missionary Association will have new programs in its series of Outline Studies, particularly on the field of missions in the South. From the variety of helps thus presented, we trust every auxiliary will be able to select studies that will supplement the work of previous years and bring to its members new information and interest.

WOMAN'S HOME MISSIONARY UNIONS.

Topics for the Year.

At the conference of officers of the Woman's State Unions, held in Providence, R. I., June 2d, a committee of three was appointed to prepare programs for use in Home Missionary Meetings during the coming year. The following list is presented in the hope that it may be found helpful. The elaborated program for each month will be found in the corresponding issue of Congregational Work.

September:
The Auxiliary and the State Society

October:
Porto Rico and the Porto Ricans.

November:
Texas.

December:
The Art of Giving.

January:
Our Slavic Peoples.

February:
The Indian at School.

March:
The Christian Academy: Its Value. Its Purpose.

April:
The Orientals in America.

May:
Alaska.

June:
Christian Patriotism and our Young People.

A DEVOTED LIFE.

Miss Cora J. Herron, one of our teachers in Lincoln Academy, King's Mountain, N. C., was taken sick about the middle of May, and after over two months of severe suffering was called to rest with her Saviour, July 24th.

Miss Herron joined our work last fall, and, while never physically strong, proved a faithful and efficient worker, becoming interested in the school and people so that she accepted reappointment and looked hopefully forward to the work of the coming year.

During her illness she was a patient sufferer, and while wishing to live for the sake of others, felt that God's way was all right, whether she recovered or not.

Miss Herron's home was at Stamford, N. Y., where she was brought for burial by Miss Newton, one of her associate teachers, who had cared for her all through her sickness. The value of such a devoted life cannot be measured.

COMMENTS AND EXCERPTS.

A Good Example.

"We take this month our annual offering for the American Missionary Association. More than any other of our benevolent societies, it brings home to us the brotherhood of man and is our chief agency for compelling recognition of that fact. For, in its work among the Negroes, Mountain People, Porto Ricans, Indians, Chinese, Japanese and Eskimos, in brief among the neglected peoples of our country, it emphasizes education, largely industrial education, thus making the people better men and women, it compels recognition of their manhood and womanhood.

"The 107 colleges and schools of this Association with their nearly 16,000 pupils; the 254 churches with over 14,000 members, all costing less than $370,000 last year, merit our generous and increased support."

The above appeared on the calendar of a New England church the Sabbath before the collection for the A. M. A. was taken. This calendar was sent to the members of the church and congregation and presents a comprehensive statement of the facts. The method is a good one for adoption among the churches generally, and is, to our knowledge, more or less widely used already. Pastors can always accomplish more than the Secretary in impressing the needs of this great missionary work and many of them are alert and progressive in the methods they employ in bringing results.

Commendation.

Nothing is more appreciated by the teachers of this Association than the approval of those who have contributed money and sympathy to this work. Recently Mr. Ralph Emerson, through whose generosity the institution at Mobile, Alabama, was made possible to the young people of that vicinity, visited Emerson Institute in that city. He bears cordial and emphatic testimony as to the progress of the work that is being done there, and we take the liberty of quoting from his letter the following:

"I was passing through Mobile and stopped over to see the A. M. A. work, and cannot refrain or deny myself the pleasure of saying I am surprised and delighted at what I have seen. When I look back at the discouragements that attended the starting, or rather the establishing, of this school in the Blue Stone College and now look at the present results, I am forced to say, 'I have seen of the travail of my soul and am satisfied.' When I borrowed the money and paid for old Blue Stone College I never dared to anticipate such results. There is much that I have seen here that reminds me, and favorably, of the work which I saw doing in Robert College, Constantinople. When the school was assembled Dr. Burnell asked those whose parents had attended the old Blue Stone College to rise in their places, and the number that rose reminded me of a young forest. It was a splendid lot of 'second growth' timber, such as we use when we wish to make a very strong and durable machine."

"O, that is a great school!" said the visitor as he was discussing the characteristics of sundry institutions with a school officer of this Association. "'Great' in what respect?" was the reply. "O, look at its plant! Think of its endowment!" the visitor said with fervor. "And what else? What is its output? Who are its men? Has it any one like Moore and Proctor and Pickens and DuBois and James Brown and Joseph Smith and Young and Sims and Snell and Inborden? Is not the greatness of a work measured by the minds discovered, trained and given to the world to lead the masses into ways of righteousness and Christian service? Is money greater than manhood? Is gold more potent than the gospel? As I take it, the A. M. A., through its churches and schools, is following God's providential leadings, and is eminently worthy of being called 'great' in its spirit and incomparable in its achievements for Christ and humanity." And the visitor said, "That is true."

THE school as well as the factory is estimated finally by its output. It is not the process but the product that determines the value in either case. The men and women who have gone out from the schools of this Association and are holding places of influence and power and usefulness in the world are the final appeal as to the far-reaching value of this work. Their number is constantly increasing and their power multiplying.

A Welcome. Two lads of about ten years of age each have been constituted Life Members of the American Missionary Association by a generous and loving friend. It is a good thing both for the missionary work and for the boys. The privileges of Life Membership in the A. M. A. are appreciated by those who hold this membership, as is proved abundantly at the Annual Meetings of the Association. Life Members are always present at these Annual Meetings in large numbers, and are an important factor in giving direction to the life and work of the Association. Those who are made members in early life grow into this administrative responsibility and the work becomes increasingly important to them. We welcome these two boys to this fellowship and trust that many other names may be added to this list.

COMMUNICATIONS

Relating to the work of the Association may be addressed to the Corresponding Secretaries; letters for "THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY," to the Editor, at the New York Office; letters relating to the finances, to the Treasurer; letters relating to woman's work, to the Secretary of the Woman's Bureau.

DONATIONS AND SUBSCRIPTIONS

In drafts, checks, registered letters, or post-office orders, may be sent to H. W. Hubbard, Treasurer, Congregational Rooms, Fourth Avenue and 22d Street, New York; or, when more convenient, to either of the Branch Offices, 615 Congregational House, Boston, Mass., or 153 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill. A payment of thirty dollars constitutes a Life Member.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.—The date on the "address label" indicates the time to which the subscription is paid. Changes are made in date on label to the 10th of each month. If payment of subscription be made afterward, the change on the label will appear on the next number. Please send early notice of change in post-office address, giving the former address and the new address, in order that our periodicals and occasional papers may be correctly mailed.

FORM OF A BEQUEST.

"I GIVE AND BEQUEATH the sum of——dollars to the 'American Missionary Association,' incorporated by act of the Legislature of the State of New York." The will should be attested by three witnesses.

THE FIFTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING

OF THE

American Missionary Association

WILL BE HELD IN THE

PLYMOUTH CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, CLEVELAND, OHIO,

OCTOBER 20-21-22, 1903.

ANNUAL SERMON BY REV. PHILIP S. MOXOM, D.D., MASS.

Rev. C. W. Carroll, D.D., Hough Avenue Congregational Church, Cleveland, Ohio, Chairman General Committee, to whom all correspondence may be directed.

Program. The Program for this Annual Meeting includes discussions upon the great, vital questions that are before us as a Christian nation to-day. Problems presented in our varied and complex population are directly included in the work of this Association. They will be discussed by experts. The education of the Negro—industrial, intellectual and moral—will be considered, and his place in our body politic. Leading representatives of this race will have free opportunity to present their own views and convictions. The American Missionary Association always presents a platform and not an organ. At no public meeting is there wider scope or greater freedom in the discussion of these great themes.

Speakers. Among the speakers to be present we are glad to announce such names as Rev. Washington Gladden, D.D., Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, D.D., Pres. C. F. Thwing, D.D., and others of equal prominence.

Mr. William Pickens and Mr. George W. Crawford, two young colored men of marked ability, each of whom took a prize in competitive trials at Yale University this year, will present different phases of the problem concerning their own race.

Mission Fields. The mission fields of the Association, reaching from Porto Rico to Alaska, will be represented. The interesting work in Porto Rico will be presented by Miss Jennie L. Blowers, who has been a missionary in that field ever since the opening of our work there.

The Annual Sermon will be preached on Tuesday evening, October 20th, by Rev. Philip S. Moxom, D.D., formerly an honored citizen of Cleveland.

Entertainment. The friends in Cleveland offer cordial entertainment to missionaries of the Association, officers, life members, invited speakers, pastors and delegates from the churches. Each delegate is requested to give the name in full and to state to which of the invited classes he or she belongs.

Board and lodging can be secured at reasonable rates in the various hotels and boarding houses.

Reduced rates on railroads on the certificate plan will be announced in the next number of THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY.

Attention. Life members, delegates from contributing churches and state or local conferences or associations, two each, constitute the membership of this Association. To this body the churches have committted the administration and immediate direction of its affairs. The responsibility is great and the representation broad. We trust that every church will elect these delegates and that a large number will be present. The churches hold the affairs of this Association in their hands, directing the expenditure of the funds they commit to this treasury and the administration of its missionary work.

The Business Session for the election of officers and the conduct of the affairs of the Association will be held on Wednesday afternoon, at 3.30 o'clock.
